Say that BICHLORIDE TABLETS are too powerful a poison to be used by any one. One year's experience with these tablets fully justifies this by hundreds of horrible deaths, which are daily increasing. The government has not yet restricted the sale of these tablets by passing a national law prohibiting their sale. Under these circumstances, it seems to us, the greatest question which you have in taking medicine is to take the one that will do you the most good without doing you the most harm. This is common sense. You may not know anything about medicine except by name. Our common-sense knowledge of knowing good and bad medicine tells us how to advise you.

Tyree's Antiseptic Powder Is not a poison, for it has never killed any one who has used it. It always acts promptly, pleasantly, safely, and without staining.

PUBLIC UTILITIES BENEFIT OF PEOPLE

Reasons Advanced for Municipal Ownership of the Local Electric Railways.

PROPOSAL IS FAVORED BY THE DISTRICT HEADS

Corporation Counsel's Comment on Relations of Transportation Line and Light Company.

In statements regarded as practically administration;s pronunciamento concerning the proposal for municipal ownership of local public utilities, District Commissioners Newman and Sidspeaking last night before a largely attended meeting of the Park Citizens' Association, came out strongly in favor of the plan.

Engineer Commissioner Harding, chairman of the public utilities commission, gave his official capacity as a reason for not expressing his views on the subject at this time, but Conrad H. Syme, corporation counsel and legal adviser of commission, backed up the stand of the civilian heads in a speech in which excoriated the management of the Washington Railway and Electric Com-He suggested revocation of the charter of the company and the transferring of its assets to the people.

Preceding the District officials, Representative Robert Crosser of Ohlo, spoke at length upon the problems of municipal ownership. His remarks were heard by a large representation of officials of the local government, including, in addition to those named, Charles F. Nesbit, superintendent of insurance; E. W. Oyster, member of the board of assistant assessors; Daniel E. Garges, chief clerk of the engineer department; J. G. Williams, statistician of the public utilities commission, and others.

Should Take Over Natural Monopoly

Mr. Crosser declared that when a natural monopoly exists and is of such a character that it is used by all the people its functions should be taken over and exercised by the municipal government. He discredited the suggestion that ment. He discredited the suggestion that municipal ownership of street railways or other utilities would lead to the building up of a powerful political machine. Privaté companies operate street railways merely for gain, he charged, whereas municipal governments would operate them with the one object of providing the best and cheapest transportation facilities for the people and of making extensions into the country to relieve congested conditions in the cities. Unless special privilege is destroyed, the speaker warned, this country will meet the fate of Rome.

Mr. Syme, who was largely instrumental in the framing of the bill recently introduced by Representative Ben Johnson, providing for a divorcement of the relations between the Washington Railway and Electric Company and the Potomac Electric Power Company, criticized President Clarence P. King of the former concern for a statement alleged to have been made by this to the effect the or municipal ownerhsip of certain pubic utilities could be advanced than the statement of Mr. King, president of the Washington Railway and Electric Com-Washington Railway and Electric Company, that he was informed by the counsel of the company that the separation of the electric lighting interest from the street railway interest as proposed by this bill was legally impossible and to do so was immoral and economically unsound. "The act of Congress under which the Washington Railway and Electric Company exists provides that this company may acquire and hold shares of the capital stock or other securities of any company supplying or under contract to supply electric power in the operation of its railway," and 'as a part of any contract for the supply of said power this company may exchange Meaning of the Enactment.

"The meaning of this enactment is perfectly plain. It was to enable the Washington Railway and Electric Company to extend such support to any existing electric power company as would render assured the furnishing of power to it and its associated companies. Certainly it was never intended that this thus limited enabling clause should be used to give the Washington Railway and Electric Company an absolute monopoly of the public and private electric lighting of the District of Columbia. It was never contemplated that this clause would be abused to enable it to pay any large part of the dividends on its $15,000,000 of stock out of the pockets of the electric light consumers of this District. It was never intended that the Washington Railway and Electric Company should acquire every share of the capital stock of the only company in this District that furnishes electric light. It was never intended that by this stock ownership it should create absolutely identical boards of directors, fix the price for public and private electric lighting and power and discriminate in favor of itself as a consumer of electric energy.

"To hold that the power given it by Congress to enable it to conduct its legitimate railway business can thus be abused by the company, to create an illegal monopoly in a product not connected with or a part of the street railway business is to assert a proposition as bad in law as it is rotten in morals. To suggest that obligations entered into upon an illegal basis and for an unholy purpose are so sacred that to disturb them is unrighteous indicates that long-continued, unbridled power is more conductive to monopoly than to morality.

There are eight woman candidates for alderman and each made a vigorous cam-paign. Scores of political clubs were or-ganized by women in the different wards and numerous mass meetings held. Many and numerous mass meetings field. Many women took an active interest in the campaign, and in several wards the woman vote may decide the contest. There are 258,000 woman registered, and it is estimated that 80 per cent of these will cast their ballot. Interest in Woman Candidate.

Alleges Abuse of Privileges.

"The abuse by the Washington Railway and Electric Company of its charter privileges to thus acquire this monopoly in electric lighting is ample, and more than sufficient of itself to justify Congress in the immediate re-vocation of its charter, the appointjustify Congress in the immediate revocation of its charter, the appointment of a receiver for its property and the compulsory transfer of its assets and franchises to hands more respectful of law and the rights of the people.

"The easiest, the quickest, the surest, and perhaps the only way to handle this situation is to take over the property and franchises of the Washington Railway and Electric Company upon a fair valuation and place the title to the same in the District of Columbia. My deliberate belief is that when its property is thus taken it will be found that it is earning more than a respectful dividend upon a fair valuation. It may not be earning any dividend whatever upon its present capitalization, but its present capitalization is the last thing that should be considered in fixing its true value. "When the beneficiary of a public grant becomes too powerful to obey the law, and considers that its coercive force is insufficient to rectify unsound conditions and illegal monopolies in public service corporations, the time has come when its public activities should cease and other agencies should carry out its obligations to the public and not consider themselves over, above and beyond the law is sufficient for this purpose. You need not be alarmed at the statement of the presi-ficient for this purpose. You need not be alarmed at the statement of the presier Nesbit as the third speaker, and that official responded with the novel suggestion that if real estate owners can operate elevators in buildings without cost to the public municipal governments might also be able to run street railways on a no-charge basis. He stated that the building of extensions into the country and opening up of communities which would add to the taxable area might prove to be a sufficient financial consideration to enable cities to maintain free eration to enable cities to maintain free

Views of the Commissioners.

Commissioner Newman, president of the board of Commissioners, referred to the management of the District of Columbia water department as an example of how effectively public service functions may be discharged by municipalities. The cry of socialism, he urged, should not frighter those who see advantages in the municipal ownership plan.

Every question which has come before the public utilities commission, he stated has stood on one proposition—the element of private profit. The commission, he pointed out, is required to protect the profit of the companies as well as look out for the interests of the public. It is practically impossible, said the Commissional of the public well as the profit of the public well as the public well. sioner, to regulate for the public weal any of the utilities when the element of private gain is constantly bobbing up to private gain is constant, defeat the purpose.

While stating that, as a member of the utilities commission, he should not be expected to announce in advance of official declaration his attitude on such according as municipal ownership, Comquestions as municipal ownership, Com-missioner Siddons declared that, as a citizen, he had no hestfancy in asserting that public service can only be rendered by public servants and not by private individuals.

Commissioner Harding said the successful operation of the District's water department is due to the fact that it is under an efficient management, which is on the job in the interest of the people twenty-four hours every day. The Engineer Commissioner paid a tribute to the work of the corporation counsel, declaring that this official is proving a thoroughly eapable and conscientious servant of the people.

WILL LAY FINAL PLANS FOR CAPITAL CLEAN UP

Committee Meets Monday Night. Citizens' Associations to Co-Operate in Work.

Final plans for waging Washington's third annual clean-up campaign during the week of April 13 to 18 will be discussed at a meeting of the clean city ommittee to be held Monday night in the rooms of the Board of Trade.

Reports of the finance, publicity and other committees will be made at that time, and instructions issued to the leaders who are to direct the big sanitary undertaking in the various sections of the city.

Announcement was made today of the completed personnel of the finance committee of which Mrs. Charlton M. Clark is chairman. The members are Former Commissioner Cuno H. Rudolph, James F. Oyster, Corcoran Thom, Worthington Bowie, Judge Charles S. Bundy, W. H. Saunders, Charles W. Clagett, Presson Shannon and Mrs. Bundy, W. H. Saunders, Charles w. Clagett, Preston Shannon and Mrs. Jackson H. Ralston.

Trying to Raise $150.

The committee is endeavoring to raise $150, but as yet only about a third of the amount has been pledged. Donations should be sent to Mrs. Clark, at 3536 Warder street northwest.

Reports from citizens' associations stating that they are planning to appoint special commtitees to supervise the cleanup work in the territories over which they have jurisdiction are reaching the clean city committee with every mail. There is scarcely a doubt but that ever zens' organization will take part in the big war on dirt. The Park View Association last night enthusiastically indorsed the plans for the campaign and voted an appropriatio of $5 for the purposes of the committee. In many sections of the District clean-up work already has started and it is expected that thousands of tons of refuse will have been removed from the
